

ADB Annual Conference 2007
Biographies of Chairpersons, Presenters and Discussants

Ifzal Ali is Chief Economist, Economics and Research Department, ADB. Over his career in ADB he assumed various key positions including Senior Strategic Planning Officer, Assistant Treasurer and Deputy Treasurer. Prior to ADB, he was Professor/Chairman of the Economics Area in the India Institute of Management in Ahmedabad. His research interests include the role of macro and microeconomic policy reforms in the context of globalization and competitiveness for the developing countries of Asia. His research focus in the past two years has been on inclusive growth. He holds a PhD in economics from John Hopkins University.

Mohamed Ariff is the Executive Director of the Malaysian Institute of Economic Research (MIER). He was the Chair of Analytical Economics at the University of Malaya where he also served as Dean of the faculty of economics and administration. He was conferred emeritus professorship by the University of Malaya in 2004 and "Datukship" by His Majesty the King in 2007. He has authored, co-authored and edited many books and monographs, in addition to publishing numerous articles in academic journals and mass media. His work deals with international trade, foreign direct investments and regional economic integration. He obtained his PhD in 1970 at the University of Lancaster, England, as a Commonwealth Scholar.

Akira Ariyoshi is the Director of the IMF Regional Office for Asia and the Pacific, monitoring regional economic and financial developments in the region. He joined Japan's Ministry of Finance as a career civil servant in 1976, and held a variety of positions, most recently Deputy Director-General of the International Bureau. He also has worked at the IMF in Washington, D.C. on two occasions, most recently from 1998 to 2000 as Assistant Director of the Monetary and Exchange Affairs Department (now Monetary and Financial Systems Department). He holds a PhD in economics from the University of Oxford.

Iwan Azis is a Professor and Director of Graduate Study in Regional Science at Cornell University. He was the Chair of the economics department at the University of Indonesia and Director of the Inter University Center for Economics. He conducted research and consulting work for various international organizations, universities and governments. He has addressed topics of financial economics, regional economic modeling, and linkages between macro-financial policy and social issues. During the last five years he has published numerous articles, and is currently working on two books. In 2006 he received a "Distinguished Scholar in Regional Science, Financial Economics, and Economic Modeling," award (in Lisbon, Portugal). He is a regular Visiting Fellow at ADBI.

Thanong Bidaya is a Visiting Fellow at ADBI. He served as Associate Researcher at the World Bank, and later as Assistant Professor at the National Institute of Development Administration (NIDA) in Thailand. His private sector experience includes the Thai Military Bank (TMB) and the Shinnawatra group developing project finance for telecommunications systems. In 1993 he became President of TMB, and in 1997 he was appointed Finance Minister to manage Thailand's economic crisis. He was appointed Chairman of the National Economic and Social Development Board as well as Thai Airways International before joining the Thai cabinet as Commerce Minister. He later served again as Finance Minister from 2005 to 2006. He received a PhD in management and a master's degree in economics from Northwestern University.

Siow Yue Chia is a Senior Research Fellow at Singapore Institute of International Affairs. She was formerly a Professor of Economics at the National University of Singapore and retired as Director of the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies in 2002. She was the Regional Coordinator of the East Asian Development Network and has also been a consultant to several international and regional organizations. She has published extensively, with over 150 books and journal and professional articles. Her research interests include the Singaporean economy; economic integration and regional trading agreements in ASEAN and APEC; international trade and FDI in the Asia-Pacific; and poverty, economic development and labor migration in East Asia. She has a PhD in economics from McGill University.

Antoni Estevadeordal is Manager of the Integration and Trade Sector at the Inter-American Development Bank (IADB). He has expertise in trade policy, economic integration and regional cooperation in Latin America and the Caribbean, Asia and Europe. He is responsible for IADB operational support, technical assistance and the policy research program on trade development issues and regional integration initiatives. He coordinates several joint initiatives with partner agencies. Before joining IADB he taught at the University of Barcelona and Harvard University. He has published in major journals and contributed to several books. He has coordinated several IADB reports and is currently preparing a report on Latin America and India. He has a PhD in economics from Harvard University.

Masahiro Kawai joined ADBI as Dean in 2007 after serving as Head of ADB's Office of Regional Economic Integration. Previously, he was a Professor of Economics at the University of Tokyo. He also served as Deputy Vice Minister of Finance for International Affairs of Japan's Ministry of Finance and Chief Economist for the World Bank's East Asia and the Pacific region. He was a consultant at the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and at the International Monetary Fund and Special Research Advisor at the Institute of Fiscal and Monetary Policy in Japan's Ministry of Finance. He has published numerous books and academic articles on economic globalization and regionalization, and regional financial integration and cooperation in East Asia. He earned his PhD in economics from Stanford University.

Justin Yifu Lin is Professor and Founding Director of the China Centre for Economic Research (CCER) at Peking University and Professor of Economics at Hong Kong University of Science and Technology. He is also a Senior Advisor to the Drafting Committee of China's Tenth Five-year Plan, the State Leading Group of IT Development, and the mayors of Beijing, Shanghai, Tianjin and Liaoning Province. He is a member of the National Committee, China People's Political Consultation Conference. He is the author of eight books, including The China Miracle: Development Strategy and Economic Reform and State-owned Enterprise Reform. He has published over 100 articles in refereed international journals and other publications on history, development and transition. He received his PhD in economics from the University of Chicago.

Peter McCawley is a former Dean of the ADBI and Visiting Fellow at the Australian National University. He has worked as an adviser to the Australian Government, Indonesian Ministry of Finance and various international agencies, on foreign aid and international economic issues. He was the former Deputy Director General of AusAID where he served on its Executive Committee until 2002, and a member of ADB's Board of Directors from 1992 to 1996. He has regularly been involved in the negotiations for the replenishment of ADB's Asian Development Fund. He has published numerous articles in academic journals and the media. He graduated from the Australian National University with a PhD in economics.

Peter Petri is Dean of the International Business School and the Carl J. Shapiro Professor of International Finance at Brandeis University. He has served as Visiting Scholar at the OECD Development Centre, as a Fulbright Research Scholar at Keio University and as a Brookings Policy Fellow. He has consulted for the World Bank, OECD, and United Nations. He is a member of the Board of the US Asia Pacific Council, the International Advisory Group of the Pacific Economic Cooperation Council's Trade Policy Forum, the PAFTAD International Steering Committee and a former Chair of the US APEC Study Center Consortium. He received his PhD in economics from Harvard University.

Yasuyuki Sawada is an Associate Professor of Economics at the Graduate School of Economics, Tokyo University. His field of expertise includes development economics, applied micro-econometrics and field surveys. He has worked on both micro-econometric studies of household poverty and community participation and on macroeconomic analyses of debt and currency crises of middle- and low-income countries. His current interests include natural and manmade disasters, official development assistance, economic analysis of suicide, dualistic development, and intra-household resource allocation in Japan. He has a PhD in economics from Stanford University.

Aftab Seth is Chairman of the International Advisory Committee and Professor of Global Security Research Institute, Keio University. He is a former Ambassador of India to Japan, Greece, Viet Nam and Federal States of Micronesia. He is a member of the Advisory Board of the Global Indian International School of Tokyo and the Board of Management Indian Institute of Foreign Trade. He is also Chairman of the International Advisory Board World Peace & Development Association, People's Republic of China, and Director to the Japan-India Association. He was a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford and received his law degree from the American College of Greece.

Shinji Takagi is a Visiting Fellow at ADBI and Professor of Economics at the Graduate School of Economics, Osaka University. His numerous professional appointments have included Economist, International Monetary Fund; Senior Economist, Japanese Ministry of Finance; Visiting Professor of Economics, Yale University; and Advisor, IMF Independent Evaluation Office. He is a specialist in international monetary economics and is the author of over 70 publications, including four books. His recent work has dealt with exchange rate policy, emerging market crises, capital market development and regional policy cooperation. His textbook on international monetary economics is currently in its third edition. He holds a PhD in economics from the University of Rochester.

Hiroshi Watanabe is Special Advisor to the President of the Japan Center for International Finance (JCIF), and is Japan's former Vice Minister of Finance for International Affairs. He joined the Ministry of Finance in 1972 and served in many areas, including taxation policy formulation. From 1998 to 2001 he served as the personal secretary to then Finance Minister Kiichi Miyazawa and took the leadership in the discussion on the New Miyazawa Initiative to assist crisis-affected Asian countries. In addition, as a senior official of the International Bureau of Japan's Ministry of Finance from 2001 to 2003, he focused on promoting Asian monetary cooperation and bilateral assistance. He graduated with a law degree from the University of Tokyo and holds a master's degree in economics from Brown University.

Yuen Pau Woo is President and Co-CEO of the Asia Pacific Foundation of Canada. He is Canada's representative on the Standing Committee of the Pacific Economic Cooperation Council (PECC) chairing the Pacific Economic Outlook forecasting panel and he coordinates the annual State of the Region report. He is Director of the APEC Study Centre in Canada and is on the management boards of the National Centres of Excellence in Immigration (University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser University) and Emerging Markets (University of Ottawa). He is also an advisor to the Centre for Asia Pacific Initiatives at the University of Victoria, the Shanghai WTO Affairs Consultation Centre, and the Asian Development Bank. He was educated at the University of Cambridge and the University of London.